The Government's Wants at Jamestown.

The negotiations that the Government has for some time been carrying on looking to the purchase of land in Jamestown to be used for building fortifications, have for the present fallen through. The Government was willing enough to pay the price asked, but when it came to the question of getting a clear title in fee simple, the Attorney General discovered a restriction in the deed regarding the purpose for which the Government should use the land. The attempt to have these restrictions removed was frustrated by the refusal of one of the holders of the land in question, a woman, to give the Government a clear title. The Federal authorities wanted all the land, or none, by purchase, so as to avoid complications in the future. They are now preparing to institute condemnation proceedings in the courts. Major Lookwood, of the Corps of Engineers, is at present making a survey of the place, with a view to rearranging the area necessary for the Government's use. When he submits his report, or as soon as possible thereafter, legal action will be taken to obtain possession of the land as mapped out by him. There is no telling how long the proceedings will last, but, judging from former experience, they will extend over a long period, probably two years. The Department is anxious to get the property, and is frotting under the enforced delay. It may happen that when ready to proceed it will find no funds available for condemnation expenses, in which case further delay would be necessary until Congress should come to its relief with an appropriation.

At the Festa.

The festa and auction sale for the benefit of the organ fund of the Presbyterian church was held in the vestry of the church on Wednesday evening and proved successful, both socially and financially, despite the unpleasant weather. The ladies had been busy for many weeks preparing for that evening, and they had at least the satisfaction of knowing that their labor was not in vain. There was a brisk demand for refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake, strawberries and cream, and candy, which were on sale during the evening. Also the aprons, each of which had a popular value as they were from different parts of the country, were in considerable demand, although, owing to the disagreeable weather, there was not such a large number of purchasers present as was expected.

The young people's entertainment, consisting of recitations and vocal and instrumental music, was a complete success and was thoroughly enjoyed.

Flower Mission.

The annual meeting of the Flower Mission was held at Old Fellow's Hall last Saturday afternoon and was largely attended. In the absence of the President, Vice-President Mrs. Walter Langley presided. The report of the secretary was received. It showed that during the year two hundred and ninety persons received bouquets, thirty bundles of papers, seventy-four baskets of fruit, thirty-five of delicacies and eight of provisions, and six people were taken to drive. At Thanksgiving fifty diners were sent out, twenty-one persons served with fruit, nineteen with delicacies, and one with flowers. At Christmas two diners were distributed, with a lot of clothing, groceries, fruit, children's playthings, etc., to thirty-four families.

The report of the treasurer showed that during the year there had been received from sale of cake, $750; New England supper, $35.13; donations, $10.30; membership fees, $20. The expenditures had been: For Piano, $5; jester, $5; poultry, $33.24; vegetables, $9.75; groceries, $5.35; delicacies, $22.03; flowers, $2.00; stationery, $1.81.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. Clarence Storrs; Vice-President—Mrs. Walter Langley; Treasurer—Mrs. Philip Stevens; Secretary—Mrs. D. Richardson.

Directress—Central Chapel Church, Mrs. A. Y. Judson; First Baptist, Mrs. E. G. Boardman; Second Baptist, Mrs. S. C. Smith; United Congregational, Mrs. C. C. McLeod; Emmanuel, Miss Jenifer Davis; St. George's, Miss Kate H. Allen; Free Baptist, Miss Matilda Lederer; First Methodist, Mrs. J. H. Allen; Tabernacle Street Methodist, Mrs. G. E. Brightman; Friends, Mrs. J. S. Klember.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, a very pleasing programme of musical and literary exercises was rendered and refreshments were served. The annual cake sale was also held.

Major Boyle has been notified that the suit against the city for the purchase recently made by the City of Newport of school desks and chairs in No. 3 Morgaville, one of which proved fatal, and the Board of Health has been giving considerable attention to the locality for some time. A recent case of scarlet fever at 83 West Broadway led Executive Officer Shaw to make an investigation of those premises and it was found that an open grease trap in one corner of this cellar was the depository for all the sewage of the five houses of "Morgaville." It was this discovery that led to the action taken by the Board of Aldermen.

The Newport Yacht Club will make a cruise to Wickford tomorrow.

Improved Order of Red Men.

The annual report of the Great Council of Rhode Island, Improved Order of Red Men, which has just been issued, shows that, notwithstanding the general business depression and hard times incident thereto, the Order has held its own to membership, is on a sound foundation in this reservation and, financially, is as well off as, and, better off than some of, the other Orders. There are in the State twelve tribes and four councils of the Degree of Pocumtux, with a membership on January first in the tribes of 1207 and in the council of 237. The financial statement shows the receipts to have been $210.00, with $1550.80 paid out for relief, $40.00 for burial of the dead, $2003.10 for other expenses. The tribes have invested funds amounting to $7078.10, with keeping of wampum $1803.40 and $708.20 in the widow and orphan funds. The receipts of the councils have amounted to $181.00. King Philip Tribe, the oldest in the state, has a membership of 101 and Moheganuck, the youngest, 68. Woonan Shassell Tribe of this city stands second in point of membership with 221. Narragansett Tribe leading with a membership of 243.

Winners Again.

Once again the Newport Artillery Company has proved itself victorious over its opponent and another trophy will, as soon as it is suitably engraved, be added to the already large and rapidly growing collection at its armory. This time the rifle team gained the honors for the organization, the occasion being the friendly shoot with the rifle team of the Naval Reserves for the handsome silver cup offered by the One Price Clothing Company. Each member of each team was entitled to twenty shots, ten at the range of each company. In addition to the trophy the winning team will be presented with a photograph of itself by Photographer Child, and Com. Sergeant H. R. Peckham of the Artillery will receive a box of cigars offered by Messrs. H. Weiner & Son for the best individual score. The scores were as follows:

A New Art Store.

Mr. Charles Jacobson, formerly of the Jacobson Company of New York, the well known manufacturers of mouldings and kindred arts, has leased the store in the Merrimac building, and is now engaged in fitting it up with a full line of pictures, frames, mouldings and other articles essential to a perfectly equipped art store. One portion of his stock which is sure to please the public are the photographic reproductions of famous pictures, which are remarkable for their beauty and attractiveness. His oil paintings, which will attract those possessed of a larger purse, require no criticism. Mr. Jacobson has had an extensive experience in art work, having for many years had the management of the retail store of the Jacobson Company in New York. Having now severed his connection with that company he proposes to devote all his time to the local establishment, and will without doubt succeed in pleasing all his patrons.

The opening of the new store will be held this evening and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Our police did a good job yesterday morning in so quickly capturing the two clothing store burglars. The officers happening along just as they did may be called a piece of good luck, as of course was, but their promptness in grasping the situation and the persistence with which they followed up their advantage, entitles them to highest credit. The result of this first burglary of the season ought to have, and undoubtedly will, a wholesome effect upon any thieves who may be contemplating visits to Newport.

Major Boyle has been notified that the suit against the city for the purchase recently made by the City of Newport of school desks and chairs in No. 3 Morgaville, one of which proved fatal, and the Board of Health has been giving considerable attention to the locality for some time. A recent case of scarlet fever at 83 West Broadway led Executive Officer Shaw to make an investigation of those premises and it was found that an open grease trap in one corner of this cellar was the depository for all the sewage of the five houses of "Morgaville." It was this discovery that led to the action taken by the Board of Aldermen.

A BOLD BURGLARY.

The Thieves Captured and Stolen Property Recovered.

A bold burglary was committed at the store of the Model Clothing Company on Thames street Thursday night, but by a stroke of good luck and the promptness of the police to take advantage of it the burglars were captured and all the stolen goods recovered before yesterday's sun rose.

Officers Sugro, Easton and Dowick were returning to the police station from their beats after being relieved at 1 o'clock yesterday morning when they noticed two men coming out of the alleyway just south of the Model Clothing Co.'s building and thought they would inquire into the business of the strangers. At this the two men started at a double quick run down Thames street and up Cotton's Court with the officers in close pursuit. One man was captured at the head of the court and taken to the station by Easton and Dowick, while Sugro continued his pursuit of the other man who had succeeded in scaling the fence. The running burglar led the officer through back yards on to Spring street and thence down Main street where he was brought to a halt by a couple of pistol shots just as Officers Sugro and Dowick, who had secured their man at the station, were returning to their colleague's assistance, and the three officers captured the second man without further difficulty.

Both men were found to be dressed in brand new wearing apparel throughout—shirts, clothing and hats—which still bore the store tags of the Model Clothing Co., and a large gift, picked up in Cotton's Court, where the springing burglars had thrown it, was found to contain upwards of $300 worth of cuff buttons and other jewelry, necktie, etc., etc., also bearing the "Model" stamp.

The men gave their names as Frank Oakes of Kansas City and Charles Inlow, of Altoona, Penn., but the former, who was apparently the leader, was yesterday identified as a former member of Battery G, stationed at Fort Adams, named Fitzpatrick.

Upon being arraigned yesterday morning both men pleaded not guilty and were bound over to the term of the Supreme Court and, in default $1000 each, were committed to jail.

An examination of the burglarized premises showed that entrance had been made through a rear window by breaking a large light of glass, and upon the floor of the store were found the discarded clothing of the two miscreants. Mr. Davidson, the proprietor of the store, readily identified the stolen goods as having come from his establishment and believed that everything was recovered.

Unsanitary Morgaville.

The Board of Aldermen held a special session Tuesday noon to act upon the report of Messrs. Tanner and O'Neill, the committee appointed to investigate the complaints of the Board of Health against the sanitary conditions of Morgaville. The Committee reported that they had visited the premises in question, and submitted two resolutions which were unanimously adopted.

The first resolution declares that the premises at 8 Morgan court, on the Frank Morgan estate, occupied by Frank Lawton and Edward Brady as tenants, is, by want of cleanliness, a defective system of drainage, and the existence of diphtheria, unfit for occupation as a dwelling, and a cause of sickness to the occupants and the public. The board therefore orders the occupants of said premises to quit the premises within thirty-six hours, and that the place be not again occupied without the consent and permission of the board.

The second order declares that the houses on Spruce court occupied by Kathie Evelyn, and by Adam Johns, and Ellen Dowick; those on Morgan court occupied by Anna Henderson and Henry Visco, and by Mrs. Siernay, John Easton and James Fitz, and that on West Broadway occupied by Timothy Honahan, all of the Morgan estate, are by want of cleanliness, defective drainage, and the existence of diphtheria, unfit for occupation. Each place is ordered to be put in proper condition by reconstruction of the drains and the making of proper connection, trapping and the removal of filth, within four days.

"Morgaville" consists of five tenement houses between West Broadway and Spruce street, and the premises No. 65 West Broadway, and belongs to the estate of the late Frank Morgan. There have been four cases of diphtheria in No. 3 Morgaville, one of which proved fatal, and the Board of Health has been giving considerable attention to the locality for some time. A recent case of scarlet fever at 83 West Broadway led Executive Officer Shaw to make an investigation of those premises and it was found that an open grease trap in one corner of this cellar was the depository for all the sewage of the five houses of "Morgaville." It was this discovery that led to the action taken by the Board of Aldermen.

Household Fancy Work.

NEW EMBROIDERY.

An exquisite table centre recently finished had for its design grapes with their leaves and vine, and was carried out in gold needle work. The massive foliage gave scope for very beautiful shading, especially if autumn tints be introduced. It is true that a strict adherence to nature's own coloring would produce some of the most effective of these tints, for the grape vine does not assume them, but this need be no obstacle to their use; the decorator's license not only permits but encourages liberties of this kind when effects are gained thereby. The scheme of color should be delicate, yet strong enough to show well at a distance. The excess of delicacy that it does positive omission of local color's no longer in favor. It was a fad, a passing for a time, but destined to give place to a truer sense of the beautiful. The decorator should beware of extremes, avoiding anything like gaudiness. To do this when rich tones are employed requires some knowledge of the laws of color harmony. It is as necessary for the skilled embroiderer to understand color as for the painter.

A good round-thread lace without dressing in it will be found to answer best for a foundation.

The grapes in the centrepiece may be represented either as white or purple. If white, a little pure pale yellow may be introduced in the reflected highlights, using the high lustre Asiatic blossoms, and will blend perfectly with the yellowish greens. For the purple fruit the delicate shades of violet Asiatic blossoms may be employed for the violet flower with reddish tones in the half lights will best serve the purpose. The stalks should be of pinkish brown, and the foliage, as already suggested, may be touched with varied autumn tints. The prevailing color should begin, unless with white grapes, when green should be more sparingly used and should decline to blue gray instead of yellow, except for some of the young shoots. The outer edge of the centre may be finished with a broad hemstitch.

A box recently made for a bride to hold wedding treasures, little things: The box was of convenient size, covered with fine white linen, on which had been embroidered two hearts, composed of forget-me-nots, tied together with ribbons, the embroidery being carried out with Asiatic silk in solid work. The box was lined with white silk. A slight layer of padding under the linen and lining will soften the outlines. If the stems on the edges offend the eye, bind them with a white silk cord.

The two hearts were placed in the centre of the cover; around this was a frame of embroidered leaves, very small, tied at each corner with true loves knots.—[See M. Niles.]

Recipes for the Table.

MUSTARD SAUCE.—Put over the fire in a small saucepan one tablespoonful of butter and stir into it a tablespoonful of flour, stirring until smooth before adding a tablespoonful of sugar, one tablespoonful of vinegar, the same amount of French mustard, and a teaspoonful of English mustard mixed with enough water to moisten it, then gradually stir in a generous half pint of good stock, and add some salt, unless the stock is very highly seasoned. Let the sauce simmer ten minutes; then strain and serve very hot with the roast.

APRICOT BROWN BETTY.—Butter a pie-dish and place in the bottom a layer of bread crumbs, then fill the dish with alternate layers of stoned apricots and bread crumbs, strewing brown sugar, cinnamon and butter on each layer, having bread crumbs on top. Bake one hour and serve with sauce.

BAKED OMELETS.—Blend three cups of milk, mashing it a bit of butter, the size of a walnut. Beat well together five eggs, one tablespoonful of flour and a scant teaspoonful of salt, and add to the hot milk, stirring as rapidly as possible. Turn into a hot, well-buttered frying pan and bake in a quick oven one-quarter of an hour.

OLIVE SAUCE.—An olive sauce is a delicious accompaniment for roast duck, beafsteak and many entrees. Soak one and a half dozen olives in hot water for twenty minutes. Put into a saucepan one tablespoonful of butter, and when it is melted add one tablespoonful each of chopped carrot and onion. When they are lightly browned, stir in a heaped tablespoonful of flour, and keep stirring until all are thoroughly browned. Then gradually add one and one-half cups of brown stock, a blade of mace, one clove, a bay leaf, and salt and pepper. Cover and let the sauce simmer for twenty minutes. Meanwhile, pare each olive from the stone in one long spiral piece. Let the olives boil in a little water ten minutes; then drain them and drop them into the strained sauce. Return to the boiling point and serve. If the sauce seems too thick, a little more stock should be added.

Which Nation Drinks the Most?

Which of the nations of Europe drinks the most alcohol? A speaker at the British Congress on alcoholism has tackled this question with remarkable results. In amount of alcohol liquor consumed, England or Germany would probably bear away the enviable palm.

But the important thing, according to the speaker referred to, is the strength of the liquids consumed.

For this purpose he brings all drinks to a common standard according to the amount of alcohol which they contain; and on this basis he arrives at the following result: Annual amount of alcohol consumed per head according to population—France, 13 quarts; Switzerland, 10 quarts; Belgium, 10 quarts; Italy, 10 quarts; Germany, 9 quarts; England, 8 quarts; Sweden, 4 quarts; Norway, 3 quarts; Canada, 2 quarts. So France is the heaviest drinker among the nations. This probably does not answer the question as to which is the most drunken nation.

THE TUBERCULIN TEST.

Chief of Animal Bureau Says No Effect Effects Follow Its Use.

Portland, Me., June 11.—The Portland board of health has received this communication from Dr. E. Salmon, chief of the Bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture, on the tuberculin test:

In reply to your letter of the 1st inst., addressed to the secretary of agriculture, I would say that the experiments made by Dr. De Schewelitz, of this bureau, as well as by others in this country and abroad, shows that cows are not injured in the slightest degree by the injection of tuberculin, so long as the material has been carefully and properly made. Experiments with reference to the quantity of milk given by animals before and after the injection show that the variation in amount is practically not worthy of consideration, unless the animal gives a reaction for tuberculosis. So far as the effect of tuberculin on healthy animals is concerned there is not the slightest ground for fearing any result, if the tuberculin used is reliable.

CAUSED BY WASHOUT.

Trade Wrecked at Exeter. Two Trainmen Killed and Two Missing.

Exeter, N. H., June 10.—Two trainmen were killed and two more are missing as a result of a freight wreck on the Boston and Maine near this place early this morning. The accident was occasioned by a washout. The engine was precipitated into the hole and turned completely over, dragging after it nearly the entire train. A search was made in the river for the engineer and a missing brakeman, but no trace of them could be found. The dead and injured are:

D. King, the fireman, was taken to the hospital so badly injured that he died in a short time.

S. G. Chandler, brakeman, is dead in the wreck.

—Hannin, engineer, missing.

—Young, brakeman, missing.

The train was in charge of Conductor Tharston. A general alarm of alarm was sounded, but when the department arrived its services were not needed.

WEEKLY CROP BULLETIN.

Nothing Rather Gloomy as a Result of Unfavorable Weather.

Boston, June 8.—It has been a dull and gloomy week in northern New England, with rain on every day but one or two. This fact, coupled with a continuance of unusually cool weather, has caused the farmers to fall still more behind in work, so that the general outlook at this time is none of the best. Heavy thunder showers visited southern New Hampshire and Vermont, and northeastern Massachusetts, on Friday afternoon, doing damage in some instances. The rainfall was very heavy. At Brookline, N. H., 1.05 inches fell in less than 20 minutes.

In southern New England the week was marked by extreme cloudiness, but in southeastern Massachusetts the rainfall was light. In other parts of the south sufficient rain fell on three days for all needs, so that now the demand is for less rain and more sunshine. The temperature continues cool for successful growth.

Alvan Clark Dead.

Boston, June 10.—Alvan Graham Clark died at 1:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home on Brookline street, Cambridgeport. In his death the world loses its greatest lens maker. With his death the famous Clark family of lens makers becomes but a memory, as he was the sole survivor of it. Mr. Clark's death was most peaceful, and he was surrounded by his intimate friends when the end came. The Yerkes lens just set up at Lake Geneva, Wis., was the last important piece of work done by Mr. Clark, and he often expressed the wish to live long enough to see if his power was what it had been.

Murder at Haverhill.

Haverhill, Mass., June 9.—Robert Kydd, foreman at J. S. Bussey's machine shop, was shot and killed this morning by E. Galvin, bookkeeper at the establishment. Galvin was placed under arrest soon after the shooting, and taken to the police station. To the officers he admitted that he shot Kydd. He said he had been subjected to a continual nagging by Kydd's hands, and that he got into a dispute with the shop this morning. The two men came to blows, and it ended in Galvin's drawing a revolver and firing at his opponent at close range. A long standing feud had existed between the two men.

To Take Tariff Out of Politics.

Washington, June 10.—The Tariff Commission league has opened headquarters in this city. Samuel B. Archer, secretary and treasurer of the league, will be in charge. The object of the association is to secure the passage of a bill for the appointment of a tariff commission, whose duties will be to suggest to Congress changes in rates of duty, and thus take the tariff question out of politics.

Canova Reappraised.

Madrid, June 7.—The cabinet crisis is over. Yesterday afternoon on the queen's reappointment Senor Canova remained and retained the entire cabinet. This action by the queen was taken after consulting General Campos, Senor Gasta, the Liberal leader, and others.

The surprise and dispair of the various sections of the opposition are not easy to describe.

Was Sister of Stephen A. Douglas.

Clinton Springs, N. Y., June 8.—Mrs. Sarah A. Granger, widow of the late Stephen A. Douglas, died at the old Granger homestead yesterday. She had a stroke of paralysis on Wednesday. She was 55 years old, and had lived on the same farm 15 years. She was postmistress here under President Arthur.

Will Refuse to Lend His Credit.

Manchester, N. H., June 8.—A special to The Union from Portsmouth, N. H., says: Herbert Bumford, who for three years past has been the trusted bookkeeper at the Morley button factory, is said to be a defaulter in what sum it is not at present known, but it is thought to be in the thousands.

A GIRL GARROTED.

Brutally Beaten and Left In a Coal Bin.

Crime at Lisbon, N. H., For Which Four Men Are Under Arrest—Victim Is a Frightful Condition—Will Probably Die.

Lisbon, N. H., June 10.—This quiet village was thrown into a state of intense excitement yesterday morning by the discovery of what now appears to have been a premeditated, cold-blooded attempted murder. The victim is Ida Lathrop, a garment operative in the employ of J. Conrad Brunner and Carl Brunner, merchant tailors. She is 25 years old, a blonde, and rather prepossessing in appearance. She is highly spoken of in the community.

It appears that Miss Lathrop left her boarding house Thursday evening to go to the workshop for a pair of button-hole cutters, with which to finish a garment she was making for a friend. She was due at the time at the Congregational church to attend a rehearsal of the choir. Telling her room-mate, Miss Woodbury, to get the music together, she matched up the latter's capes and sang that she would join her soon at the church. That was the last seen of her till yesterday morning, when, search being made for her, she was discovered about 9 o'clock by Carl Brunner in the coal bin under the front portion of the store. She was bound hand and foot, and was unconscious.

Examination revealed that the young woman was in a terrible condition, with but little hope of recovery. Her face, ordinarily thin, was so puffed and swollen as to be almost unrecognizable, and as soft as jelly, giving rise to the suspicion that the victim had been choked into unconsciousness and then pounded with a fist while the cloth was over the face. Two small scratches were the only marks visible on the throat. Both eyes were blackened, and there were several contusions on the ears, side of the face and chin. Strangely to say, not a drop of blood had been shed.

The local police were immediately notified and at once went to work on the case, but the whole affair seems to be shrouded in mystery. Four men have been arrested, the two Brunners, proprietors of the tailor shop; a Spaniard named Joe Calabrese, and Joe Norton. The police, however, are waiting for expert assistance before proceeding any further.

MISS LATHROP WILL RECOVER.

No Credence Given Theory That She Attempted Suicide.

Lisbon, N. H., June 11.—Ida E. Lathrop, the young victim of a brutal assault, is pronounced out of danger, and her recovery is practically assured.

It may be a matter of days or even weeks before she will be in a condition to be examined as to what occurred.

Tuesday night, when she received those unaccountable injuries in the cellar of the tailor shop of George Brunner's Sons, where she was employed. If she can recall the circumstances attending her injury her story should be a surprising one, I daresay as no one appears able to give any intimation as to how she came to be in the coal bin and so near death.

It has been settled positively by the physicians that the young woman was not encycloped to commit suicide, as the wounds could not have been self-inflicted; also that some one must have been with her in the cellar of the tailor shop, and that that person tied her ankles and wrists with handkerchiefs after she had been laid out in the bin.

Yates' Samson.

New Haven, June 8.—Under the supervision of Dr. Jay W. Seaver, physical director of the Yale gymnasium, a public strength test was taken at the gymnasium yesterday afternoon to enable Charles C. Chadwick, of the senior class, to try to break the record held by C. S. Venille of the class of 1900. Venille having broken the inter-collegiate record held by Chadwick. The test was highly successful. Chadwick made total of 236 kilograms, or about 4703 pounds. The record

Selected Tales OVER THE RANGE.

It is well to say in the beginning that this is but a story of myself. I was a most intrepid observer of its progress and end, and am now a sorrowing recollector. The man was my nearest friend, generous, patient and brave, the best man I ever knew—and the roman the liveliest I have ever seen. They seemed made for one another, yet God willed it another way.

It was early in the '80s when Lem Yerrell and myself went to Colorado to take the management of the big company store at the Amells mine, under a most profitable contract. It was a case of dead riddling that we had cast upon the waters. Years before we had been running a small store in a little Missouri town, and had, in the way of extending credit, beftonded a certain Jim Evans, an unlucky farmer in the neighborhood. Evans, afterwards, is not himself to the mountains, and stumbled upon what became the Amells mine, one of the world's greatest copper producers. When the mine became established a store was built to hold the trade of its throngs of miners, and Evans would have none but Lem and myself to manage that store.

I am a talkative man, while Lem was taciturn, but I am lazy, dull, listless to bodily exercise, especially in motion, associated with business, while Lem was restless and forever on the move. I was always content at times to sit on the store gallery and look at the eight river running past; the great red, brown and yellow cliffs that overleaped our little valley, or the glimpse of the distant snow-capped range through the Y of a deep gorge that came into the river opposite our quarters. Lem was fond of moving about and seeing things. At every opportunity he was away, roaming among the hills with his big dog Tack, a Missouri Impartial. Frequently he would be gone all day, and return late at night to keep me awake telling of his discoveries.

We do remember one evening when he returned from a long walk, dusty and tired, and sat down resting against the gallery posts with his legs hanging over the side. The dog, too, was apparently worn out, and lay stretched his full length on the floor beside him. I sat there a long time hanting his red face with his tail, and finally broke up my mind of blather by saying irrelevantly: "About three miles above here, at the mouth of a creek, is a right tidy little farm (we were then too new to use the term 'ranch') 'll arise—a-posed with irrigation ditches. I stopped there at the house to get a drink, and a girl brought it to me. She is the prettiest girl in the world."

I laughed, and Lem wearily rose and went in to supper and to bed. A little incident was a trifl, but in the light of things that came, the thump of the bell that preceded the rising curtain and the ushering in of the drama.

As the season advanced and the snow-line retreated farther and farther toward the higher summits of the range, we began to hear talk of the doings of one Dick McCord, cattle-thief, highwayman and murderer, some said, while others spoke of him more leniently. We knew in a general way that the authorities were after this man, but as neither the outlaw or his pursuers interfered with the business of the mines, we were indifferent, until a circumstance attracted our attention. One afternoon the Sheriff of Mineral County, with a considerable posse, came riding up to the front of our store and stopped there. One of the men dismounted and read a printed notice among the advertisements about the doorway. Evans happened to be holding talk with Lem, and me, when the stir and the noise of the hammering brought us all out in front, even before the poster had re-mounted his horse. This was the new notice:

$500 REWARD.
Fifteen hundred dollars of the above sum will be paid by J. M. Hunter, Sheriff of Mineral County, Colo., for the capture and delivery to the State of Colorado, of Dick McCord, a notorious desperado, and a convicted criminal, who has escaped from custody and is now believed to be hiding in the Sangre de Cristo, the southern part of Mineral County. He is about 30 years old, black hair and eyes, and weighs about 160 pounds, has a scar on his left cheek and a bullet wound is always heavily armed and will certainly resist arrest.

An additional sum of $200 will be paid by the Sheriff for the capture and delivery to the State of Colorado, of Dick McCord, a notorious desperado, and a convicted criminal, who has escaped from custody and is now believed to be hiding in the Sangre de Cristo, the southern part of Mineral County. He is about 30 years old, black hair and eyes, and weighs about 160 pounds, has a scar on his left cheek and a bullet wound is always heavily armed and will certainly resist arrest.

These rewards will be paid in cash, and at once upon performance of the conditions herein set forth.

J. M. HUNTER,
May 21, 1888. Sheriff Mineral Co., Colo.

I had no sooner read and comprehended the purport of this most serious document, when Evans stepped in front of me, snatching the thing down and tore it into bits. The ashen-faced Sheriff shouted out and wanted to know what he meant. Evans strode to the edge of the gallery, and, shaking his fist at the officer, retorted:

"This is my land and my store. And you can bet I ain't going to allow any blood money notices for the son of my old friend to be put around here. The boy's been hounded into the life he's leading, and he isn't near as bad as a d—m sight as them who's a persecuting him."

I expected trouble, but the Sheriff became strangely mollified and apologetic. Evans was a power politically and otherwise in that region that no man dared to arouse into antagonism. The Sheriff bottomed up whatever drate feeling he might have had and contented himself with saying,

"Very well, Mr. Evans, since you feel this way about it, I won't bother you. A good many folks take Dick McCord's part, just like you do, but as for me, I can't do but not this, keep after him all the time until I get him. Good day, sir."

This ended the incident. The Sheriff and his posse rode away down the valley and disappeared among the hills. We settled down again at the back of the store, and there Evans read Lem and I the whole story of Dick McCord, with an evident prejudice in the outlaw's favor. Evans was prone to fling in irrelevant details and to wander from the straight path of narrative so as to render a synopsis preferable, in this place, to his exact language.

A few years after the war old man McCord, with his two sons, Dick and John came to Colorado from Missouri and started a cattle ranch in the lower edge of South Park. In a small way the old man and his boys prospered. Others came and settled near them, until there was quite a number of these little ranches scattered about the park. Evans, while prospecting there, used often to stop at the McCord ranch and get greatly attracted to its owners. All road. His visits followed his, and in an instant expression on her face, I quipped:

"Harm, have you seen Alice about somewhere? I'm afraid she's out for a walk, and will be caught in this storm." "Well, it won't spoil her, but here comes the storm," said he, looking up the hill. "All road. My visits followed his, and in an instant expression on her face, I quipped:

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure.

Celebrated for its great baking strength and reliability. Contains the food against which all forms of adulteration cannot stand.

In the value of real estate. There had been numerous sales of small lots of land near the railway station on the Old Colony Railroad and several inexpensive cottages built, and here was found the principal increase in valuable value of real estate. The entire net gain in value of real property as compared with 1896, was only $5,125, the large reduction in the south part of the town nearly counter balancing the increase in the north. In personal estate there was a gain of $21,000 since 1896, nearly all this coming from the north part of the town and where the municipal outlays have been least. Poll tax was assessed upon 46 persons. The rate of town tax is $6.00 per $1,000. The assessment shows aggregate as follows:

Real Estate, $2,182,825

Personal Estate, 670,700

Total, $2,853,525

Total amount of town tax, $16,273.05

Gains in amount of town tax, 174.75

MIDDLETON.

TAX ASSESSMENT CONSOLIDATED.—The Assessors of Taxes after several days employed in reviewing and adjusting the table of tax for the year 1897 and considering the grievances of various tax-payers, closed their hearings and completed their assessment on last Saturday afternoon and deposited the same in the Town Clerk's office. The Assessors proceeded on a more conservative line than in 1896, and many less changes were made. The valuation of several large estates in that part of the town lying contiguous to Newport was materially reduced, in some cases ten per cent, of the former valuation being lopped off, and in one case as high as 88 per cent. There was not much building in the town during the year 1896, and nothing to warrant much increase.
